Feminism is a concept which reflects the need to reshape the present social structure where mostly women were been tormented by the male counterparts. It is a voice and a movement to stop at once the mistreatment done by the male from time immemorial simply by not giving them the fundamental right to think independently like men do. Women cannot experience complete sense of liberty without jeopardizing their position, character, love, dignity, life, in executing their dreams like work, education, travel, expression, vote, marriage, write, act, sing, etc. When so many things were been deprived from women in rudimentary level Feminism came as a solution.

While the definition talks about men and women been equal but in reality it is not, which may perhaps be a hard pill for most of the people to digest but our perception that there is a parity in gender which may not necessarily be a reality .The objective truth which is independent from the perception to what we define Feminism is doesn't corresponding to how we would like to see Feminism as to create wonder in removing gender bias.

In order to speak things that one consider to be true one has to risk him/herself offending someone otherwise if he/she can only speak things cautioning someone not to get offended then those said things may not necessarily be true all together. If a person's intention is to create connection and a pact between bionaries in harmony, than one can raise the issueof equality that exist in the fantasy world and generalize it that will culminate into one solution without making each one of us truly realize those elements that compels a men to misbehave with women in the first place. Those difference and factors can be argued as originated from cultured as well as biological.

The real question is "can a man be a Feminist?"

Can a man feel Ok to let go off their priviledge position in the society i.e.Patriarchy?

Can a man truly want a women be above him in terms of position and power?

This are very uncomfortable question that any man will feel difficult to answer.

Since it is the women not the man who are generally in threat from man who might and has misused their physical strength to victimize women by depriving them to have the right to live, right to say No, and the right to have access to different opportunity that equalize men and women. And Why man are doing it despite of repeated warning, appeal, debates from government and intellectual discos is because we as a man perhaps are insecure and feel women a threat when we cannot enjoy the power which we already have been privilege over and cannot tolerate someone less stronger than us to have those power in front of us.

Its more of a power play than Gender disparity. And what is the point of having power if you don't utilize it and that's where most of we get wrong.

It is really sad if one male stand up and started defending him telling I am not like others who mistreated women. Its actually me including everyone's responsibility to compensate the wrong that has already been done by our forefather in the long historical blunders towards women as I or anyone representing male species should teach and educate other males about sensitizing do's and the shame in don't or anyone cannot or should not remain shrugged just because I or someone have not contribute to malicious activity towards women.

I am glad that a movement like Feminism has started otherwise Uncouth, Prejudiced and stereotype man would never have realized "what and how women want herself to be treated and look upon." We cannot blame entirely to a man because his conscious mind is a product of circumstances that chiefly include hisupbringingcompletely biased against women. Most people never go beyond what they are been taught. We will continue doing things that are circulated in the community society and the family we live unless he is confronted of the mistake prevalent in the society with substantial amount of logic, common sense and humanity.

To elaborate the above mindset of man who thinks it is absolutely ok to misbehave with women, here are few simple question.

Why we eat only selected herbs and vegetables?

Why don't we include all the wild herbs or versatile vegetables that always get cleaned in our garden with vibrant colors?

Since we have not eaten them for so long our mind will perceived their taste as equivalent to unhealthy if not poisonous.

We can even use Rose flowers to enhance chicken curry. But we haven't .WHY??Because our brain is like a computer works on data or information gathered from subjective and specific environment with limited knowledge or perspective that is always colored from someone else who himself has lived a life based on ideas that were again limited.

The notion and relic that we embrace proudly are infact the policeman that imprisoned us and subconsciously glorifies our ego which are disguised in anything that gives power. So blinded by megalomaniac Ostentatious Avatar we have almost forgotten to exercise Compassion, Humility and Listening with Empathy for which it doesn't appear to any man that women who from time immemorial were been subordinate to man, can and have also the right to raise higher than us.

Until and unlessa man is not been confronted he will never realizeor better line is- it would never come to his mind that women can also have a life of dignity and choices rather than just an extension of her father or husband's identity. So without proper education disguise in confrontation it will never occur in our mind that a wild herb or vegetables of forest can also be eaten like regular vegetables.

So I am glad the movement has at least successful in posing least threat to female child and parent started showering equal importance to both gender when it comes to education and onus.But sadly we cannot eliminate gender biases in remote and rural areas and that is a shame. Still Gang Rapes were not been reduced. Still highly educated women succumb to dowry and most sadly parents in complete clandestine long for a male heir.

A man needs to confront that the women whom he feel pleasure to score points by misbehaving and abusing belongs to the same species of your own mother, with out whose sacrifices and love he wouldn't have been where he is now. All his strength, bloodare infact the consecrated milk of her mother which no man can ever repay.

The Patriarchy is originated from our culture and this hierarchy and binaries were been celebrated without modifying it only to fill up a man's sense of self worthlessness {not all man think that way} and playing it smart to keep this women counterpart at out of the game so that male don't have to compete for quality, efficiency and talent. Feminism is all about making a place for women in the man's world who can live with dignity and alternative choices like man.

But there is a little Irony in Feminism which needs to contemplate and give redirection to, otherwise women will turn them to be unattractive and unapproachable. So my simple question are-

Is women's mild and soft nature seen as a weakness?

Is women behaving ruddy and adopting a sulky personality considered as empowerment?

Is the quest for earning more money than men seen as gender equality?

Is working late nights and going to work leaving their children to someone else custody a gender equality?

The question is not about playing the man's game by women, behaving like man, not crying at all or living alone without a man sharing her life. The Real Question is- Are women in actuality happy doing all those things that a man used to do?

I wonder sometimes women might have taken this battle of their "existence to be felt" a bit further where both man's as well as women's life has turn sorrowful. As now women might have started thinking that accepting a man is like allowing her liberty to be controlled by man and focus entirely on career. And man no longer find women of those trait attractive. The question really knocks loud at me- Are women happy competing men? Given a choice do they feel more happy spending time with her children and nurturing them OR live single and working late nights?

Whatever is happening to women and in women are all the results of atrocities done by men from the past which unfortunately is going till now. So as a repercussion this dangerous avatars are inevitable and can't blame either. I am putting few questions of Common Sense?

If there is a huge and heavy stone that needs to be lift and displace than who is the better choice, a man or a women?

Who is better in raising kids?

Will women be happy doing a job of lifting stones, patrolling and combating enemies in border ?

One shouldn't do something that doesn't permit and correspond to their biological setting and capacity just for the sake of gender equality. There are few robust differences and roles that are best suited for each other naturally which no doubt both can exchange but as I have said outcome would be better if we reserve few things like nurturing babies to woman and working physical labour to man. So Feminism is precisely a voice against the loss of respect, dignity and choices which are deliberately and forcefully kept out from women by the man. So the entire movement resides on the availability of Dignity and Choices not a competition to taste who is better. IT is indispensable for a man to understand that he may be physically stronger and may be right sometimes but he has not got a license to be cruel with women by taking advantage of his strength. If he really think himself the moral police or righteous man who justify his heinous conduct by showing the need to give proper lesson to women's fault (his perception) than why can't he exercise his strength with the same vigour towards Terrorist, Criminal, Mafia, Drug Dealer. They are doing more harm than his wife, daughter or any other women. He cannot because he is a coward and select his pray like a fox or a dog. Have you notice a dog is capable only in his areas but a lion don't have an area. So one who beats or misbehave with someone weaker than him is surely not a lion but a Certified coward Dog.

It is not only the women who need to be free from the patriarchal society but also the man who need to be free from those pre conscious role that society has define for man. Man needs to be unlocked from the prison of societal expectation. It is really sad that with his lack of education, wisdom he continued to verify his manhood by doing those things that are in our culture and upbringing i.e. to beat and dominant women which is no doubt Inhuman but also redundant. It is really sad that a man shedding tears, nurturing child and cooking are seen as sissy. So man needs to detect those invisible shackle and liberate themselves from the Stereotypes and become more of a human being than a man. Both man and women needs to grow as a human being wrapped with sensibility, dignity and with job Utility rather than taking society's a measurement scale to define those vardstick and definition to fit themselves in.

We are putting both of them to the extreme ends which is diluting the true humanity, courtesy, decency and humility which if continued for long our brain's thinking and working pattern will culminate to a default mode of pretentious self that has forsake the true self and started adopting a pre defined phony role and believing it to be an authentic self if persisted without altering or modifying it to original than it will lose the option to customize for betterment and development will eventually beat the purpose of Feminism itself.
